What is the role of a College?

Like all colleges, we provide a home in which to live, eat, and participate in the many activities Oxford has to offer. However, our key role lies in arranging and delivering the small-scale tutorial teaching (working with some of the best minds in the field and with the small group of students doing your subject in the College) which underpins the intellectual excellence for which Oxford is known. Keble is a well-resourced College with at least two full time Tutorial Fellows in virtually every subject. Our tutors are all committed to developing the talents of each and every one of the students here. We see ourselves as an interdisciplinary community, where students will learn from discussions with those in their own and other subjects, and we believe that the College is a wonderful environment for intellectual exchange at the highest level.

Courses we offer

- Archaeology & Anthropology
- Biological Sciences
- Biomedical Sciences
- Chemistry
- Classical Archaeology & Ancient History
- Computer Science
- Economics & Management
- Engineering Science
- English Language & Literature
- English & Modern Languages
- Geography
- History
- History (Ancient & Modern)
- History & Modern Languages
- History & Politics
- Human Sciences
- Law (Jurisprudence)
- Law with Law Studies in Europe
- Mathematics
- Mathematics & Computer Science
- Mathematics & Statistics
- Medicine
- Modern Languages (French, Italian, Spanish)
- Modern Languages & Linguistics
- Music
- Philosophy & Modern Languages
- Philosophy, Politics & Economics
- Philosophy & Theology
- Physics
- Theology & Religion
Did you know?
Keble Hall is the longest dining hall in Oxford!

I’ve found Keble to be a tremendously warm environment. As an international student new to Britain I could not have hoped for a more inclusive or varied college community. One thing you notice quite early on is the huge variety of activities that are available to students; whatever your interests are you can count on them being supported and fostered by the college.

John Mainland,
Law with Law Studies in Europe

John (right) with friends Robert Pieters, History & Politics (centre) and Edward Jenks, Physics (left)
What facilities does Keble provide?

Facilities at Keble are set up to help students achieve, however and whenever best suits them. Our well-stocked library is open 24/7 and we encourage collaborative learning and group work whether in the social space that is Café Keble or in our first-rate seminar rooms. All student rooms have high-speed internet connections giving access to electronic resources, and all areas are covered by the college’s wifi network.

Outside of study, we have other superb facilities such as the student-run O’Reilly Theatre, with a thriving drama and music culture around it, a very well-used gym, a bar, music facilities and a sports field. Also, never underestimate the power of dining together in Hall: great for maintaining friendships, but great too for sparking ideas!

The college has a great environment. We live in amazing onsite accommodation, and the café and bar are great places to do work or relax.

Sarah Shao, Economics & Management
former JCR President (left)

Our undergraduate student body is central to the vibrant college community. As JCR President I represent undergraduates both to college and to the wider university. It is such a privilege to be involved in decisions that will affect many current and future Keble students.

Caitlin Brown, Geography
current JCR President (centre)

Keble boasts a number of extra-curricular activities, from our sports teams to our very own theatre and music societies. Whatever your interests, there’s something to get involved in!

Ronit Kanwar, Economics & Management future JCR President (right)

Does the College offer Financial Aid?

Keble has a wide range of bursaries and other forms of financial assistance to supplement the support already provided by the University and UK government. The Keble Association of Old Members provides numerous grants to support student activities, including travel, arts, study and internships. We also have an extensive range of prizes and scholarships – which include cash and free meal benefits – awarded on the basis of academic excellence. Around 90 or so of our students at any one time are “scholars”.

Café Keble
Where will I live?

Keble has some of the best student accommodation in Oxford. We can house all first and second year undergraduates and the vast majority of those in their third year. All of the student rooms are within the grounds of the College itself and we have an ongoing programme of refurbishment. You might be in one of the original Victorian rooms, or in the award-winning 1970s buildings of DeBreyne and Hayward Quads, or in the contemporary Rick Mather buildings of Newman Quad.

More information on accommodation at Keble (including photos of rooms) is available on our website. A number of rooms are also available to view during the Keble Open Days in June/July and September.

Location

Keble has a great location just to the north of the city centre. It is within 5 minutes walk of the majority of science departments and 10 minutes from most other departments. We are also right next to the University Parks, which offer acres of green space for walks, picnics, morning runs, etc.
Where do I look next and how do I apply?

For full details about Keble, including subject by subject information, previous admissions round feedback, financial aid and facilities information, please visit:

www.keble.ox.ac.uk/admissions/undergraduate

For information about how to apply to Oxford, visit:

www.ox.ac.uk/study

For up-to-date information about fees and funding, visit:

www.ox.ac.uk/funding

To check if your subject requires a pre-interview test, visit:

www.ox.ac.uk/tests

Visiting Keble

Keble is open to prospective applicants most days of the year. There is no need to book prior to visiting the College. You can ask for a map at the Porter’s Lodge and then wander through the grounds.

Contact Information

If you have any questions about Keble, please contact us at admissions@keble.ox.ac.uk

Address: Admissions Office
Keble College
Oxford
OX1 3PG

Telephone: +44 (0) 1865 272708
Web: www.keble.ox.ac.uk