Keble College Oxford

Part-Time Stipendiary Lecturership in Neuroscience

The college proposes to elect a part-time Stipendiary Lecturer in Neuroscience for Michaelmas to Trinity terms 2022/23. The successful candidate will be expected to give 6 weighted hours tutorials per week in neuroscience. The person appointed may be required to assist with the routine administration and organization of teaching in this area, and assist with undergraduate admissions.

The appointment will be made on the Stipendiary Lecturers annual scale from £13,962-15,703. The Lecturer will be entitled to 6 free meals per week (lunch or dinner) per week when the College kitchens are open, and the use of a computer and a shared teaching room. There is an academic allowance of £355 p.a.. To comply with employment legislation the successful candidate will be required to provide documentary evidence of their eligibility for employment before starting work with the College.

Informal enquiries about this post may be made to Dr Simon Butt (e-mail: simon.butt@keble.ox.ac.uk). Further particulars are available at www.keble.ox.ac.uk/academics/vacancies/.

Applications should reach the Student Administration Officer, Penny Bateman, at Penny.Bateman@keble.ox.ac.uk not later than noon 12 noon 17th March 2022. They should contain brief particulars of the candidate, including a summary of career and details of education, degrees and other qualifications; experience in teaching, research or other employment; research in progress or planned; details of publications, prizes or awards (if any); and the names and addresses of two referees who can speak with detailed knowledge about the candidate. Candidates should also ask their referees to send their reports directly to the Student Administration Officer by the date above.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates who are under-represented in academic posts in Oxford.